His Study And Reported That Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (CBT) is an effective treatment for anxiety disorders. This study was published in the Journal of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry in 2004. The study involved 100 children and adolescents with anxiety disorders, who were randomly assigned to either CBT or a control group. The CBT group showed significantly greater improvement in anxiety symptoms compared to the control group. The study also found that CBT was effective for a wide range of anxiety disorders, including generalized anxiety disorder, social anxiety disorder, and specific phobias. The results of this study have been widely cited and have led to the widespread use of CBT in the treatment of anxiety disorders.
